

Newcastle man professes Augustinian way of life

Paul Skippen, who was raised and educated in Newcastle, became a professed member of the Order of St Augustine on 6 February. During Mass at Manly Vale, Paul and two other novices received the black habit, the Rule and the Constitutions of the Order which is over seven hundred years old. Paul complete his novitiate at Brookvale and will now work at the Centre for Augustinian Spirituality at Greystanes.

John, Paul and Catherine Skippen after Paul's profession as a member of the Augustinian congregation of men at St Kieran's Manly Vale on 6 February.